Discuss The New Highway Location

Tentative plans for the re-location of Highway No. 3 through the Crownsnest Pass was discussed at a meeting held in Blairmore on November 25th attended by members of Crownsnest Pass Councils and representatives of the Department of Highways who presented plans showing possible location of the highway.

The department are asking for 300 feet of right of way to provide for six lanes of traffic to be built in stages. The very preliminary plans were presented to councils for their study and suggestion at a later date.

The plans show that the highway would enter Bellevue at a point and pass through the William White farm and proceed west coming through the villages present ball park. An overpass in this area would cross Dairy street and the road would continue west and rejoin the present highway near the Bellevue nuisance grounds.

The road would follow its present course through the Frank Slide and the village of Frank and would enter Blairmore at the east end of town then would swerve slightly north to cross the Charles Drain property and several other properties and then cross the river and continue south of the cemeteries west through the West Canadian Collieries (now Scurry Rain bow) property through the golf course and come out just north of the Crownsnest Pass Municipal Hospital. The road would then proceed west between the hospital and Crownsnest Pass Clinic and rejoin the present highway.

At the east end of Coleman the road would proceed in a westerly direction north of the present school site and continue north of the cemeteries through Carbondale, coming out north near the Dept. of highways sheds.

The old (present highway) through the 'Pass between Coleman and Blairmore will be maintained for local traffic purposes.

Fire Brigade Holds Social Evening

"No Child has died in fires in Coleman or other Crownsnest Pass towns in years beyond recall" stated Andy O'Toole of Lethbridge of the Fire Commissioners office, as he commended the Volunteer Fire Brigade at the annual banquet held in the Catholic Hall.

Mr. O'Toole speaking to the fire fighters and their fifty guests, stated that the fire fighters just don't realize how good they are as reports given in the press and other news media only report fire loss but never report the hidden losses that could result if fires were not curtailed.

Records, he said, show that if a business or industry is lost by fire 42 per cent never re-open which results in payroll loss, layoffs, loss of taxes to the town thus creating a burden to other taxpayers and increased insurance rates. Loss of the sale of utilities and other services also results from fire loss.

Mr. O'Toole said "Fires" don't happen they are caused and last year in Alberta alone 58 persons lost their lives in fire of which number 34 were children.

He praised the local brigade for their leadership in fire prevention work more so than for fighting fires which he stated was the fact or responsible for Coleman's low fire loss. He congratulated fire chief Henry Zak for the operation and work of the close knit Coleman brigade is doing.

Mayor John Holyk expressed the towns appreciation at the good work the brigade is doing. Short remarks were given by councillors Mel Cornett, Fred MacLeod, Peter Walker, Victor Krzywy and brigade officers Ed Amell, John Wavrean and Bernie Roubka.

The gathering then retired to the Elks Hall where the annual fireman's ball was held attended by several hundred persons.

Council Notes

Coleman council informed at its meeting last week that Department of Highways officials would meet with mayors and council bodies in Blairmore council chambers on Nov. 25 to discuss location of Highway 3 through the Crownsnest Pass.

Council endorsed a letter from R. J. Frost, chairman of the Fish and Game Task Force of the Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce soliciting support and requesting councils to write to their MLA's asking that the government undertake a crash program to upgrade the trout and pheasant resources in the province. A letter is to be drafted to this effect and forwarded to Charles Drain MLA at Blairmore.

The town's building committee will investigate the matter of two buildings being brought into town without first having obtained a permit to do so. The committee will bring a recommendation at the next meeting. One building is to be used for a home expansion and the other for a utility building.

Eul Schmidt, proprietor of the Grand Union Hotel informed council that vandals had used glass cutters to mark windows on parked cars in the hotel lot and that eggs had been thrown on some vehicles. Chairman of Police Mel Cornett and Mr. Schmidt will take this matter up with police.

The town secretary will write to a Safety Supply house requesting prices on sewer blower units and safety lamps for work in the towns sewerage system.

Town foreman Rudy Szymanski reported that snow removal equipment was ready for use. He also advised that crews were continuing work installing sewer services in town. He stated there were about 30 to 40 services left to install.

A bylaw for the purpose of changing the present business tax to a business licence system will be brought up at a special meeting when rate schedules will be studied.

Entire Street Paving To Cost $153,000

Tom Miyayaga, engineer and P. B. Makowichuk, head of roads and materials department, of Underwood, McElliott and Associates advised Coleman council that the project of paving the entire street system in the town would cost in the vicinity of $153,000.

Mr. Makowichuk indicated that this figure was on the high side and that costs had been estimated on providing a four inch base of crushed gravel, plus a prime coat plus two inches of asphalt. Used in construction would be about 62,000 yards of overlay, 77,000 yards of new construction for a total of about 90,000 square yards.

He further advised that the town were eligible for a $9,000 government road assistance grant plus $12 per capita grant. He said there were three ways in which the project if approved could be financed the first being an increase of 11.4 mills on the total assessment; a frontage tax assessment of about 56 cents per front foot (flankage not included) or an increase of 50 per cent (5.7 mills) could be charged on local improvements and 50 per cent (28 cents per foot) benefit charge on property.

Mr. Miyayaga said there was about six miles of street to be paved and if shoulders on some select streets were to be paved costs would be increased by about $29,000.

Lawrence O. Smith and Harold Wyne, Associate Planners with the Old Man River Regional Planning Commission were present and advised council that the Crownsnest Pass Study was progressing and draft proposals would be available around the end of the year. The men explained how all information gathered during the earlier part of the year has been coded and is presently being computerized.

Discussion took place on the relocation of the business section of town and some housing and feasible location was suggested as being north east of the new school site. Mr. Smith indicated a real mess is going to result as the Kananas highway entrance is right in the vicinity and this is used by commercial vehicles. The new highway, he stated is also reported to be going to be located in the immediate vicinity.

Money For School Buildings Is Limited

The Government does not have an unlimited supply of money for the construction of schools in Alberta. Education Minister Raymond Reiersen told a group of school trustees in Edmonton in mid-October. Speaking at a Zone Meeting of the Alberta School Trustees' Association, Reiersen pointed out that school boards throughout the province have made requests to the Department of Education for buildings with an estimated total cost of more than two hundred million dollars over the three-year period of 1968 to 1970.

The Government has obviously felt for some time that the brakes must be applied in educational spending, or one might be more accurate to say on all government spending, education included. It was decided at the 1968 Session of the Legislature that borrowing from the Alberta Municipal Financing Corporation, for school purposes, must be limited to fifty-million dollars for this year, or to a total of twice that amount, namely one hundred million dollars, for the two-year period 1968-69. The Minister's latest statement on the subject now indicates that the Provincial Government plans to extend a strong hold-the-line policy through the third year, that is 1970.

A number of trustees in Edmonton and Calgary, however, are not convinced that the cities can meet their needs on the kinds of limited building budgets the Government proposes. To begin with, Calgary's School enrolments have been increasing at the rate of about five thousand a year, and Edmonton, apart from the rapidly-expanding areas of Sherwood Park and St. Albert, has been having to provide school accommodation for about three thousand additional students each year.

Government economy measures in school construction are having a number of interesting effects on the province. First, school boards are building only those schools which they regard as having top priority. Second, they are examining the possibilities of standardization in design and construction — a sort of mass production which has the effect of lowering the cost per unit. Thirdly, some education leaders have unofficially suggested that boards should find ways of financing school construction projects through sources additional to the Government's Municipal Financing Corporation.

Naturally the Minister discourages such a move on the grounds that the Government's budgeting is adequate.

A fourth development arising out of the limiting of funds for school construction is a new emphasis on co-ordinated research and design, which is bringing about pressures on the association of school boards. Increased demands are being made on the Alberta School Trustees' Association to provide for its member boards more services pertaining to school construction. Boards which have in the past sought help from the Department of Education in preparing their "Statements of Needs" are beginning to feel that such statements should be prepared and defended by the school jurisdictions themselves, with the help of their Association secretary.

G. A. Ternesette a new Calgary Separate School Board member who has had extensive experience in school design and construction, states that school jurisdictions throughout the province should work together more closely in school planning and building, both through their Association and through the recently-formed Alberta Educational Facilities Council. The E.F.C. consists mostly of building experts in the province's largest school systems.

As a project Officer in the University of Calgary's Planning Department, Ternesette sees the possibility of expanding the Educational Facilities Council to include university planning as well as planning for elementary and secondary schools.

The Department of Education, the A.S.T.A., the E.F.C. and various architects and engineers working together have just completed Alberta's third School Design Workshop, held at the Northern Alberta Jubilee Auditorium, Oct. 23 and 24.

Discussions of the cost of building schools was a very important feature of the workshop. Of particular interest was a presentation by W. R. Mahou, Quebec Assistant Deputy Minister of Education. While Alberta is talking about fifty million dollars a year for school construction, Quebec is talking in terms of nearly a billion dollars in a four-year program which Mahou describes as being designed to "develop as much as possible the talents of all the children and give equal opportunity to all". He states further that the Quebec Government's centralized research and design services in school construction have over a period of a year and a half resulted in savings of 25 per cent over what schools would have cost if each jurisdiction had designed and built its own schools.

Getting back to Alberta, the consensus among trustees here seems to be that the association of school boards, working with bodies like the Educational Facilities Council, can bring about the kind of co-ordination of effort in this province which will assure the taxpayer that the amount of money he invests in school buildings is paying the maximum in educational dividends.

Who knows, perhaps we can stretch fifty million dollars and make it accomplish more than we thought it could.

September Traffic Accidents Up

September traffic accidents took the lives of 42 people in Alberta.

Total traffic deaths for 1968, stood at 300 by the end of September, an average of 100 every three months. This is six per cent higher than one year ago.

These figures are contained in the monthly traffic survey for September released recently by the Alberta Safety Council.

The survey also shows there were 450 injuries reported during September. In all, there have been 7420 traffic injuries reported for the year to date, up 11 per cent from the year before.

Fatal accidents during September totalled thirty-five. There were 608 injury accidents, and 3193 property damage accidents reported.

By the end of the ninth month, there had been 33,750 accidents reported in the province, up 14.5 per cent, for an estimated damage total of $16,201,09.

Safety Council President Ralph Couper points out that statistics tend to show most fatal accidents occur when the weather is clear and the roads are dry. Added to this is the fact that a very high proportion of serious accidents occur during darkness.

"Right now," he said, "we have conditions of early darkness, combined with fine fall weather. This seems to be a very dangerous combination of conditions." "The best advice is to keep your speed down and don't outdrive your headlights."

The Forest And Man

Canada's forest problem essentially is a problem involving the wise use of land that can and should produce crops of timber. Flourishing woodlands, however, mean more than timber crops, permanent industries, and an adequate supply of wood. They minister to our need for outdoor recreation; they preserve animal and bird life; they protect and beautify our hillsides and feed our streams; they preserve the inspiring natural environment which has contributed so much to our Canadian character.

Although our national progress in forestry has been well begun, much remains to be done through both concerted and individual effort. We must stamp out the forest fires which still annually sweep many wooded areas, destroying timber the Nation can ill afford to lose and killing young growth needed to constitute the forests of the future. Forest fires, caused largely by human indifference or carelessness, are the greatest single obstacle to reforestation and effective forest management. We must extend and encourage methods of timber cutting which perpetuate the forest while harvesting its products and we must plant trees in abundance on idle land where they can profitably be grown. In short, we must, as a Nation, realize the need for conservation of our forest heritage.

... an upside-down observer of Alberta?

Harold Von Hollen usually remains right-side-up, but to him most of our province appears topsy-turvy. He is an instrumentman with the Surveys Branch of the Alberta Department of Highways and spends a great deal of his working time peering through a transit, which gives him a "bottoms-up" view of the land which he is surveying. This branch is charged with the tremendous task of surveying every inch of the 255,285 square miles that go to make up the Province of Alberta. Highway right-of-way is only a small portion of the work done which also includes duties ranging from advising on the marking off of a homestead, to providing the survey datum for locating an oil well site. From prairie farmland to mountains to northern bush, the Surveys Branch is engaged in a complicated system of triangulation that charts property boundaries to a very small margin of error, providing an accurate measurement of Alberta's terrain.

As Horticultural Technician in charge of vegetable production at the Alberta Department of Agriculture Horticultural Station in Brooks, Allan Reesor is a man with a garden most people wouldn't believe. He is responsible for growing the raw materials for a pilot project to determine the feasibility of a vegetable production industry in the province. From his plots come recommendations as to the variety of each vegetable best suited to the area; the most efficient methods of planting, growing and harvesting. Experts at the Horticultural Station not only experiment with the production of various vegetables but also test methods of processing, types of packing and methods of marketing. Every possible assistance is given to Alberta farmers in selecting the fruit, ornamental and vegetable varieties most suitable to local conditions.

have you ever met...

... a guidance counsellor for vocational guidance counsellors?

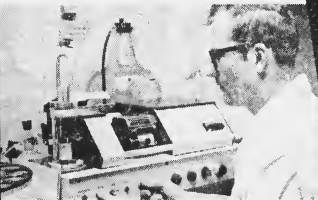

John Flaherty, of the Counselling and Guidance Branch, Alberta Department of Education, has the responsibility of keeping the province's many school vocational guidance counsellors up-to-date on the latest developments in career opportunities for graduating students. The Branch is currently preparing an exhaustive reference work called a "careers kit" which will be circulated to schools in the province and which details the latest reference material available on the increasingly diversified careers in our urban society. Through Mr. Flaherty, and the Guidance Branch, hundreds of school guidance counsellors in Alberta are better prepared to advise the youth of our province on their choices of future careers.

To make a proper study of the migration habits of Alberta's black bears, each animal must be identified in some manner. Milan Novak, wildlife biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Division, Alberta Department of Lands and Forests, takes care of this problem by first tranquilizing the bears, then attaching colored streamers to their ears. This makes the animal easily identifiable from a distance and assists in the inventory of Alberta wildlife being conducted by the Branch. This survey has a dual purpose. It is meant to determine the extent of the province's wildlife population and to measure the amount of natural habitat and forage available. With this information on hand, Fish and Wildlife Division personnel are able to maintain a proper balance between population and land necessary for their support. Such research is a continuing and important segment of the activities of the branch on behalf of Albertans.

Livestock, like people, need a properly balanced diet to thrive and grow. Adolph Wittmer is an expert at determining the contents of animal feed and his skills are available to Alberta farmers through the Soil and Feed Testing Laboratory of the Plant Industry Division, Alberta Department of Agriculture. Laboratory services include the analysis of basic home-grown feeds, feeding recommendations and diagnosis of special feeding problems. Any livestock producer can avail himself of the services of the Laboratory and its expert personnel merely by supplying his District Agriculturist with a sample of the feed for analysis and a prescribed information sheet. More efficient use of available feeds, gained through the services of the Soil and Feed Testing Laboratory, means improvement in the economy of Alberta livestock production.

... a theatre-goer who never sees the movie?

Kenneth Kremer does most of his movie-going when the house lights are up and the screen is dark. He's one of the theatre inspectors who travel the province for the Amusement Branch of the Alberta Provincial Secretary's Department, inspecting every theatre and entertainment hall. It is their responsibility to ensure that all precautions are taken to safeguard the public and that regulations regarding facilities and cleanliness are followed. In addition, the Branch supervises training of motion picture projectionists, conducts examinations to make sure that they are properly trained in the use of the very advanced equipment used in today's movie houses, and issues licenses to those who qualify. In this way, the Amusement Branch contributes to Albertans' enjoyment of uninterrupted motion picture entertainment in safe, pleasant surroundings.

Forest Fires Ravage Alberta's Economy

Forest fires which ravaged Alberta this summer destroyed nearly one million acres of trees and robbed the province's economy of an estimated 60 to 70 million dollars in potential timber products. The Department of Lands and Forests Management Branch, releasing these figures, said about 2.5 million cords of pulpwood and 700 million board feet of saw timber were lost.

The total of 976,820 acres lost up to October 10 this year destroyed ed more than one year's timber output for the entire province under the 100-year sustained yield program.

The lost timber is more than the amount used by all the extractive industries in the province in a year.

In addition to the lost timber are fire-fighting costs, estimated at $5.5 million, and the cost of artificial reforestation to make sure the trees are eventually replaced.

Up to October 10, almost the end of the "fire season", the Department's fire fighters had been called out to 557 fires, 496 of them in forest protected areas.

The Slave Lake forest, with a total of 119 fires and 389,941 acres burnt, was the worst affected, followed by Lac La Biche with 45 fires and 289,945 acres and Whitecourt forest with 81 fires and 209,072 acres burnt.

The worst fires occurred in May in the area between Vega, about 60 miles northwest of Edmonton, and Lesser Slave Lake. A combination of settlement brush burning, hot weather and winds up to 40 mph from the southeast set the stage for fires.

Farmers doing their annual burning were surprised when the wind changed around from north-westerly to south-easterly, bringing with it high temperatures. Lightning also did its part in setting alight several areas.

The fires, whipped out of control by the hot south-easterlies, jumped the wide, winding Athabasca River, normally a perfect natural fire break. On their way to the lake they created firestorms with hurricane-force winds which ripped mature trees apart as if they were matchsticks.

Twelve hundred "hotshot" fire-fighters, the best in the province, battled the blazes, aided by up to 130 aircraft and some fire-fighting supervision from Ontario.

Canadian Armed Forces aircraft helped to evacuate threatened towns and settlements while bulldozer operators working on fire-breaks lay under their machines as the fires swept over them.

The 1968 fires were the worst in Alberta's history. The last really bad year for area loss was 1956, when 694,400 acres were burnt. In an average year, about 96,000 acres are burnt.

Some of the burned-over timber is being salvaged by loggers but it is now up to nature and the artificial reforestation program to do the rest.

Murphy-Kapalka Vows Exchanged At Holy Ghost Church

The Holy Ghost Roman Catholic Church in Coleman was the scene of a lovely wedding at two o'clock Saturday November 9, when Patricia Anne Kapalka, daughter of Joseph H. Kapalka of Coleman exchanged vows of matrimony with Mr. Robert Murphy of Calgary, son of Mrs. Mary Murphy of Hamilton, Ontario. Rev. Walter Krewski officiated at the ceremony and was attended by Lawrence Kapalka, brother of the bride and Glen Soroff, nephew of the bride.

The Church was decorated with bouquets of mums and the pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was radiant in a floor-length gown of peau d' elegance with a train falling from the shoulders; and from a head-piece of leaves and teardrop flowers misted a full-length nylon veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of pink roses. Her only jewellery was a dainty wrist watch, a gift of the groom.

Miss Jane Kapalka, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Susan Jones was bridesmaid. They were attired in identical floor-length gowns of pink peau d' elegance with Empire waistline and detachable train which fell from the waist and attached with a bow. Their headpieces were in pink with the veils falling from a small flower headpiece. They were matching pink shoes. The bouquets were similar to the bride's but contained white carnations.

The flower girls, also wore floor-length gowns to match the bridesmaids', and wore similar head-dresses. Both girls carried small baskets of white carnations.

Ring-bearer was David Kapalka, nephew of the bride and was attired in a white suit.

Mr. John Kapalka, brother of the bride, was best man and Mr. Gary Goodrow of Calgary was groomsmen. Ushering the guests were Lawrence Kapalka, brother of the bride Douglas and Glen Soroff, nephews of the bride.

Miss Valdene Salus presided at the organ and Bonnie Dobek was the soloist.

For her son's wedding Mrs. Murphy chose a deep pink dress with beading around the collar and front of the dress. She also wore matching hat, gloves, purse and shoes. A corsage of white roses completed her outfit.

A hot supper for about 140 guests was held in the Catholic Hall where Mr. Julius Kapalka, brother of the bride acted as master of ceremonies.

Mr. John Ondrus proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded. Mr. John Kapalka proposed the toast to the bridesmaids and flowergirls. The groom proposed a toast to the parents.

Miss Monica Ondrus presided over the guest book.

A wedding dance was enjoyed by all following the supper.

For her honeymoon, the bride changed into a white wool suit with accessories of black and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy have taken up residence in Calgary.

Out of town guests in attendance at the wedding were from Fernie, Ontario, Edison, Elk Island, Calgary, Edmonton, Blairmore, Pincher Creek and Lethbridge.

The Human Element In Fire Waste

A. E. Bridges
Alberta Fire Commissioner

It has been jokingly said that the law prohibiting bigamy has been enacted to protect those incapable of protesting themselves. Like arguments have no doubt been used for all law enactments. Ironically though, man's best efforts to protect his hard earned assets are quite often thwarted by human error. Human errors recently coming to my attention in the case of six large fires are as follows:

(a) faulty installation of electrical panels by electrician, (b) janitor holding in open position school corridor smoke barrier doors with improvised wire fastening, (c) pot of sausage forgotten and left cooking on restaurant cook stove after kitchen closed for the day, (d) handling gasoline in open container near an open flame heater, (e) smoking in bed, (f) failure to examine machine bearings for overheating after daily operation of feed mill.

The total loss resulting from these common human errors in these recent fires is estimated at $355,500.00. In addition one death by fire and three injuries resulted.

There are two main ways of tackling the fires from human error problem —

(1) make the laws tough and the penalties severe, (2) pay much higher cost for enforcement and supervision.

Until that is done we depend upon human enlightenment and concern extending beyond and overcoming strictly narrow and limited self interests. It is very evident that as things are that now as never before so many suffer the high cost of fire because of a careless few.

Gerhart Advocates Policy To Reduce School Cost

An engineering system employing flexible controls to curb school building costs was advocated today by the Hon. E. H. Gerhart, Alberta Attorney General and Leadership Candidate.

Speaking in MacLeod, Gerhart said that he had studied the Quebec programme now in its second year of operation, and was impressed with per square foot reduction in the cost of their schools, at a time when building costs were generally increasing.

"The Quebec experience could be very easily adapted to Alberta," said Gerhart, "and I am satisfied that through the applied research we can reduce both the cost of our schools, and the cost per student in space requirements, yet provide a better standard of school buildings."

The Gerhart speech was delivered at one of a series of provincial wide meetings addressed by the 44 year old leadership candidate.

Teak is more water resistant and shrinks less than most woods. This is one reason why it is so important for boat-building.

Wood shrinks and swells across the grain much more than parallel to the grain.

THE MAN

At 44, Gerhart has served 16 years in the Alberta legislature, and occupied two important cabinet posts.
His other achievements include two academic degrees, and a major contribution to both the business and community life of our Province.

THE OPPORTUNITY

GERHART WILL . . . * Encourage greater development of secondary industry and expand our trade potential into the Pacific Northwest and Pacific rim countries. * Provide loans immediately through banking institutions guaranteed by the Province to assist farmers affected by low grain yields. * Revitalize Social Credit constituency associations and encourage greater participation by younger members. * Introduce applied research programs to reduce school building costs and improve standards of schools. * Resist need for sales tax by improved budgetary control, and remove duplication of services. If further capital expenditures required, these to be assessed proportionally against future revenue. * Call conference of Alberta municipalities to review alternatives to reduce home owner property tax load.

PLAN TO MEET ED GERHART AND HIS WIFE IN THE CHATEAU LACOMBE DURING THE CONVENTION.

Christmas is just around the corner and it's time now for you to make the Christmas fruit cake your family loves. Aging definitely improves the flavour of your cake. Rich dark fruit cakes should be made prior to one month before Christmas; white fruit cakes or cakes with less fruit should be made closer to Christmas.

Here are some tips which might help you when buying fruit. One pound shelled walnuts measures about 4 cups — unshelled 2 cups; a pound of raisins, prunes or cut dried fruit such as apricots and pears from 3 1/4 - 3 1/2 cups; one pound of candied fruit or peel about 5 cups.

You don't need to pick your currants or one by one — just wash in an abundant supply of water and any which should be removed will float to the top.

Do you have trouble with the fruits and nuts sinking to the bottom of the cake? Then don't forget to dredge them with flour — use the flour called for in the recipe — and if additional flour is used the cake will be dry.

Glaze or candied fruits that have dried out from standing may be softened by placing them in a sieve and steaming over boiling water.

Always bake your fruit cake in a slow oven 250°F — 275°F. Grease cake tins and line with four layers of waxed paper or three layers of brown paper — grease again. Avoid top heat in the oven if possible. You can prevent the top from drying out by placing a shallow pan of water on the rack below the cake rack. If the cake appears to be browning too fast, cover loosely with tin foil or brown paper. When is the cake done? A fruit cake is done when a steel knitting needle inserted in several places in the cake comes out clean.

Glaze the top of fruit cakes — a ribbon but not sticky finish. Combine and bring just to a rolling boil — 1/4 cup light corn syrup, 1/4 cup water. Remove from heat. Cool to lukewarm. Pour over cold cake before or after storing. Dip the underside of candied fruits or nuts in cooked white frosting and press lightly into top surface.

For a Christmas "package" pipe a ribbon and bow of colored icing over a white frosted cake.

Store the cake by wrapping it in a piece of cheesecloth soaked in fruit juice or wine. Then wrap in aluminum foil and tuck the ends in well. A stone crock makes an excellent storage place for fruit cakes. A scoop of brown sugar or an apple placed in the container with the cake will help keep it moist.

This is the first in a series of columns to help you with your Christmas preparations in my next few columns we'll talk about all sorts of things from gift wrapping to holiday foods. So keep watching — perhaps you'll get some new ideas for the festive season.

Education . . . To Prevent Fraud

WINNIPEG — Not all those whose cases are investigated will lose out as a result of the Unemployment Insurance Commission's stepped-up drive against fraud.

A spokesman said today that in the light of a six-month pilot program, it seems that fraudulent attempts to obtain unduly high unemployment insurance benefits represent between 15 and 20 percent of claims.

In the last financial year, $2,000,000 wrongfully drawn from the Unemployment Insurance Fund was recovered, following investigations. In the financial year ending March 31, 1969, it is expected that $3,000,000 will be recovered.

With the extended and redesigned program well under way by then, yearly recoveries of over-payments may reach $5,000,000.

"When the amount of fraud starts dropping, we shall know that we are getting somewhere," said the spokesman. "It will not mean we are relaxing our program of control. It will mean that more and more claimants are realizing dishonesty does not pay."

The program has two aspects. On the one hand it will apply a strong curb to dishonest practices. On the other it will remedy cases where it is found claimants have received less than they should have. In this case, too, adjustments will be made and the program will contribute to both aspects to efficiency in the operation of the unemployment insurance scheme.

To make clear beyond doubt what is permissible and what is not, the Unemployment Insurance Commission is launching this month a large-scale program of public education.

Brochures on the subject of "availability for work" as a condition of benefit, one of the principal areas of abuse, and on the consequences of dishonesty have been prepared for distribution to claimants. Two and a half million copies of each booklet are being printed.

A booklet will also be available for distribution to employers, describing the role they play in ensuring that claimants receive every penny they are entitled to — and do not receive what they are not entitled to. It also describes sanctions that can be applied against them, if they act in collusion with untruthful claimants.

A cross-Canada speaker program staffed from within the Commission will concentrate the attention of labor, employer and other groups on the need for — and the progress of — the crackdown operation.

Christmas Seal Campaign Now Underway

One of the greatest humanitarian efforts in this country is the annual Christmas Seal Campaign, the proceeds of which are used in the fight against tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases.

Tuberculosis is not licked, and the tuberculosis associations across Canada have not given up their effort to wipe out this disease.

"Not when between four and five thousand newly reported cases in Canada last year are around to keep us reminded that we haven't won that war", said Mr. R. Borstad, Grande Prairie, president of the Alberta Tuberculosis and Respitratory Disease Association. Mr. Borstad adds, "But when death from just one disease — emphysema — are four times what they were fifteen years ago, it's time for action. It is going to take a lot of research and education to make headway against a disease that has thousands struggling for breath."

Dr. R. G. Foulon, Drumheller, treasurer of the Alberta Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, reports provincial returns for the first ten days of the Christmas Seal Campaign amount to $90,097, or 31% of the provincial objective of $294,300.

Approximately 150 professional foresters will graduate this year from the four universities in Canada which give forestry training. Technical and ranger schools will provide an additional 600 forest technicians.
